Dear Michelle,

Thank you for taking the time to speak with my college classes (Families in Crisis) this past week on the topic of domestic violence. You have never failed to deliver when I've asked for your expertise, and as usual, your presentations were well prepared, timely and filled with important information.

You spent the entire morning at Mitchell College sharing your expertise to two classes, certainly above and beyond the call of duty. I want you to know I appreciate your hard work. Kudos to you. I trust the Women's Center of SE Connecticut realizes what a jewel you are for the Center, not to mention the entire state of Connecticut for all you do. You have a tireless passion for your work, obviously worn on your sleeve, and you succeed in raising the consciousness of your listeners and encourage them to learn more about the topic.

Michelle, you have the enviable ability to present your knowledge base in an interesting and engaging fashion. I could listen to you all day. You shed much light on an important topic, particularly for Behavioral Science students, and left them with a wealth of important information. You are such a vital connection to the Mitchell College community.

I hope we didn't tire you out too much. The students are still buzzing about you and what they learned. Of course one of the risks here is that they would like you to teach the rest of the course and deep-six me. That has to be the ultimate compliment!

Thank you again, Michelle. I look forward to your next presentation.

Warmest regards,

Dr. Jeffrey S. Turner, Ph.D.
Professor, Behavioral Sciences Department
